Igloo Craft

Supplies:

Penguins

- scissors
- colorful cardstock or construction paper
- glue
- google eyes
- orange marker

Igloo

- sugar cubes
- cookie tray
- aluminum foil
- cookie icing in white (or you can make your own using confectioner's sugar and water)

Directions to create an Igloo:

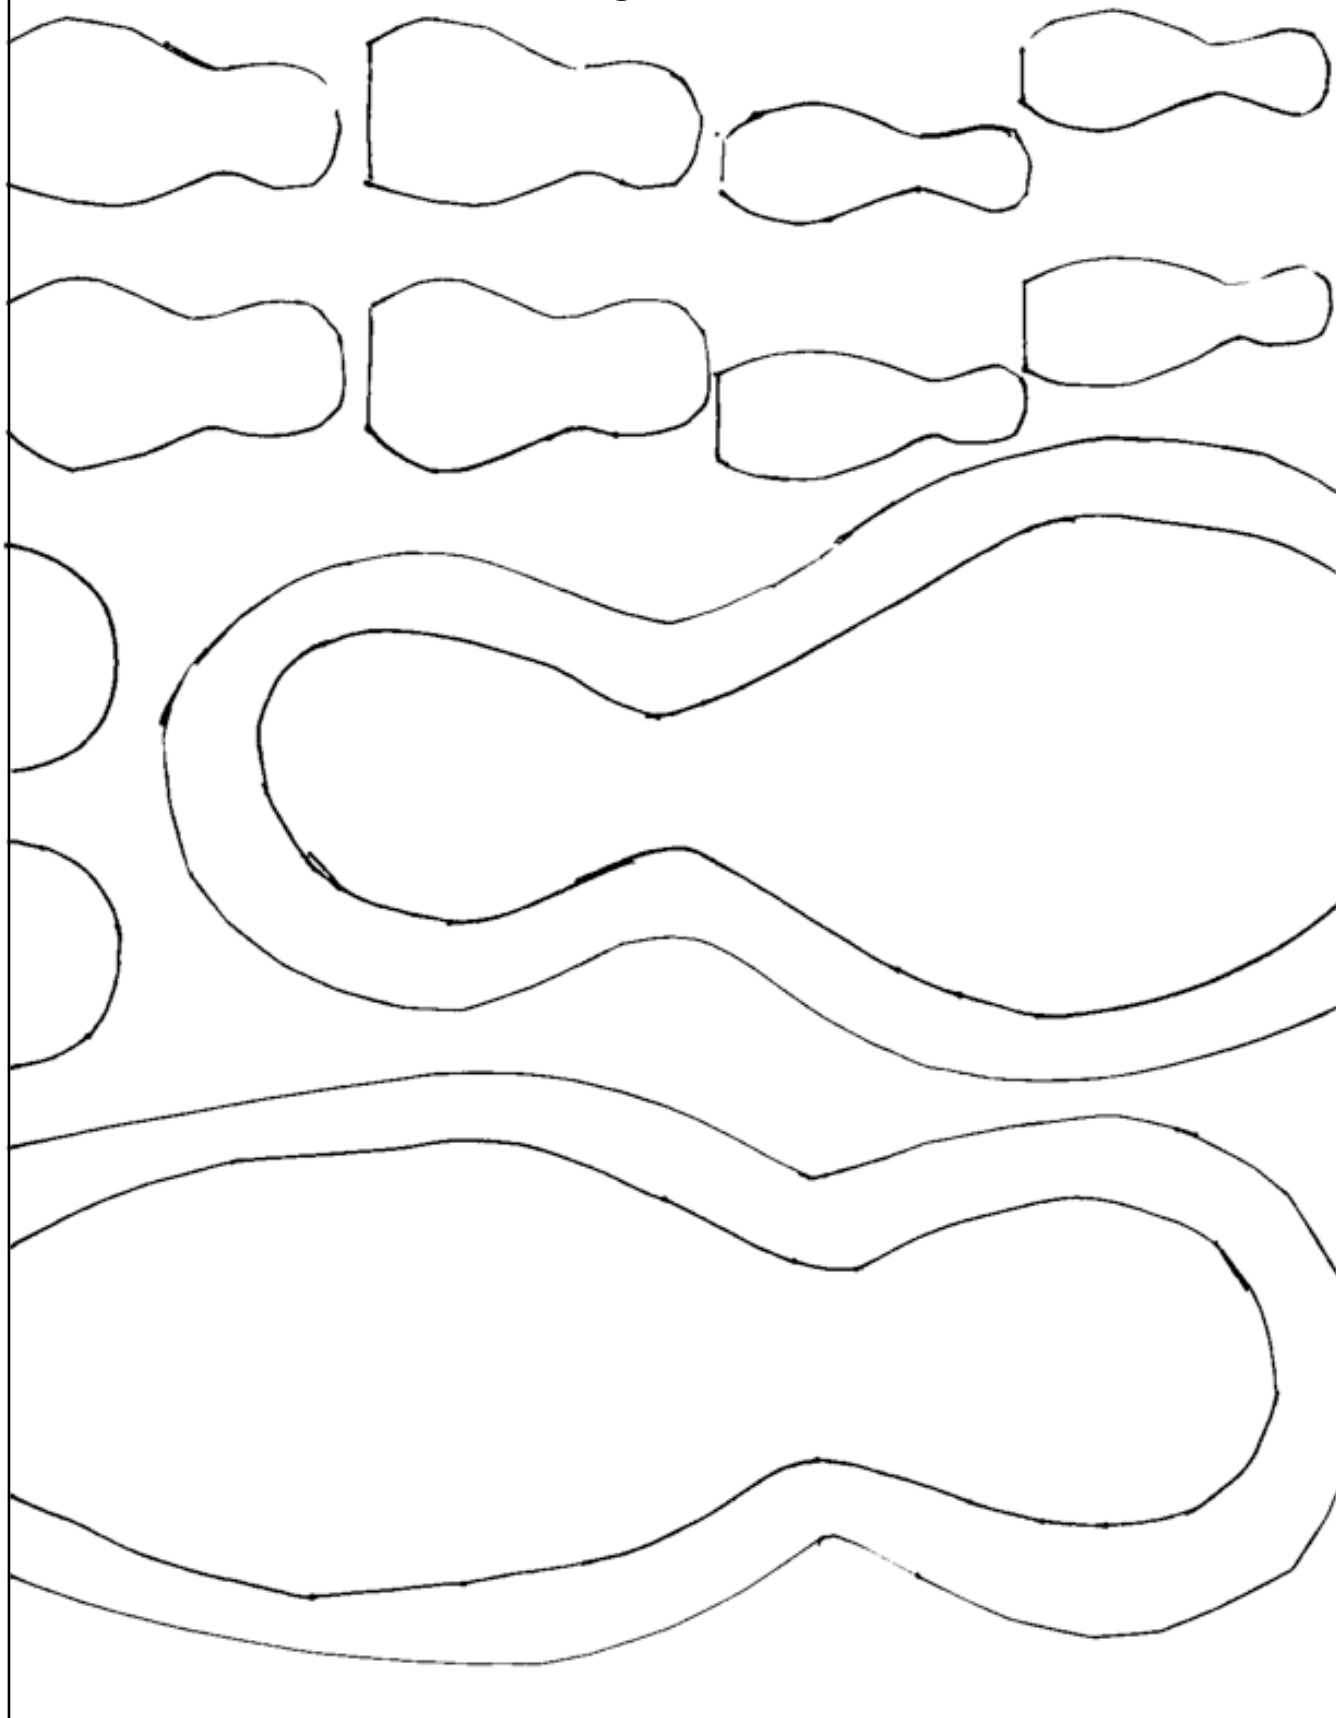

- Wrap a cookie sheet in aluminum foil for a clean floor for the igloo (makes clean up easier).
- Create a circle with an opening for the door on one side with the sugar cubes.
- Stack the cubes so that each cube is supported by at least two cubes underneath it, and gradually stack them so each layer has a slightly smaller circumference than the previous layer.
- I managed to stack five layers to create the wall, you can stack as low or as high as you wish.
- For the roof use the icing as mortar and lay the sugar cubes in a brick pattern gluing each piece to all connecting sides – make sure your roof is large enough to completely cover the opening at the top of the igloo's circular wall.
- Once dried, lay the roof on top of the opening and stack a few last cubes on top to polish off the “dome” appearance of the igloo.

Directions to create Penguins:

- Cut the pattern from the guide: both sizes of penguins are on the following page.
- Trace the patterns onto black and white card stock or construction paper – use the larger bowling pin shapes for the outer body and the narrower bowling pin shapes for the inner bodies of the penguins.
- The small penguins are for the scene and the larger are a hands-on craft for the child.
- Glue the white shape into it's matching larger black bowling pin shape.
- Glue on google eyes (or you can draw eyes).
- Using an orange marker, draw a beak and feet on the white body of the penguin.
- Two small half moons are included in the pattern to create stands for the smaller penguins – just cut a slit in the curved side of the moon and on the bottom of the small penguins to stand them up.
- Voila – you now have an icy igloo scene for your little one. Enjoy!
